

Lesson 2: Heading and Paragraph notes

Key notes to remember

1. There are other heading elements than h1. There are 6 different heading tags h1 – h6.
2. Each heading element is used to display different size heading titles.
3. There is a paragraph tag which is ``
4. The paragraph element is used to surround a group of sentences (a paragraph) in your document and separate each paragraph from the surrounding content.
5. A paragraph is a block element. It is surrounded by a certain amount of space that pads it from the surrounding elements.
6. Regular words (text) that is put into html, even if written on several different lines, will not be separated into different lines when viewed in a browser. To separate the words, the sentences, you must use a block tag similar to the paragraph element.
